B. Raum, Commissioner, Washington W. L. Springs, late Special Deputy Collector, but for more than two years a con-vict in the State Penitentiary, has been

E. M. BRAYTON, Collector. This man, W. L. Springs, has a history which shames civilization. He was a Special Deputy Collector, employed in spenia Leputy Collector, employed in operations against the moonabiners of 8outh Carolina, and he and his brother, Rufus Springs, Deputy Marshal, were par-ticularly active in the pursuit of the no-torious outlaw, Redmond, and it became necessary to put them out of the way. Rufus Springs, the Marshal, was waylaid torious outlaw, Redmond, and it became necessary to put them out of the way. Rufus Springs, the Marshal, was waylaid and murdered. His brother, W. L. was too wary to be caught in that way. So process by the State Courts was resorted to. In one of his raids Springs, being resisted by an armed moonshiner, clubbed his gun and knocked the man down. For this "assault" he was indicted, and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest and removal to the distant wild-cat region of the State where the alleged assault occurred, for the ourpose, Springs firmly believed, of taking him out of jail and murdering him. The intervention of the U. S. Courts which ordered a transfer of the case prevented this plan being carried out. An effort, was, however, made to keep Springs by State process in defiance of the U. S. Courts. The next move was the bribing of an ignorant negro to trump up a charge against Springs of stealing an old silver watch. The Governor of the State was in the Court-room at the time of the trial, and when the verdict of the jury was rendered he expressed great surprise that such a verdict should be rendered.

The subsequent history of the case can be gleaned from the annexed correspondence:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, BUREAU INTERNAL REVENUE, WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12, 1880. Hon. John Sherman, Secretary of the Treasury

Hon. John Sherman, Secretary of the Treasury:
Sir—I desire to call your special attention to the case of Wm. L. Springs, 'lately a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue in the State of South Carolina, and now imprisoned in the Penitentiary of that State, upon a sentence of three years, for the alleged larceny of a silver watch valued at about eight dollars. At the time of his indictment, in 1878, Springs was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, engaged with a number of others in suppressing illicit distilleries. At the time the public mind in South Carolina was highly excited against these officers, and the State Courts were invoked in every possible manner to visit punishment upon them In this state of affairs Springs was arrested and brought to trial, and upon evidence, manner to visit punishment upon them In this state of affairs Springs was arrested and brought to trial, and upon evidence, which the present Governor of the State regarded as insufficient, was convicted and was sentenced to the Fenirentiary for three years. The case of Springs was such a one as could not be transferred to the U. S. Courts, and so Springs was brought to trial in a State Court, where it would have been the next thing to a miraclé for him to have received impartial justice in the then excited and prejudiced state of the public mind. The ill will to Springs followed him to the penitentiary, where, upon a false representation that he was a dangerous man, he served for eleven wonths with a ball and chain to his lex.

CIRC PROVIDED TO SERVICE THE STATE OF THE STAT lowed him to the penitentiary, where, up-on a false representation that he was a dangerous man, he served for eleven months with a ball and chain to his leg. unonths with a ball and chain to his leg. Springs was sentenced on the 18th day of July, 1878. During the following month, these illicit distillers against whom he had been operating, were brought to bay and a signed act of elemency was granted them by allowing them to plead guilty and have their sentences suspended. Three hundred and seventy-eight persons availed themselves of this annesty. Considering these facts, and the further fact that Rufus L. Springs and his brother, another Government officer, was bushwacked by the illicit distillers, and that no effort has been made by the State authorities to ferrer out the murderers and bring them to justice,

UNITED STATES INTERNAL REVENUE COLLECTOR'S OFFICE,
DISTRICT OF SOUTH CAROLINA,
COLUMBUS, March 2, 1880.
Sin-Replying to your letter of the 27th ult, I have the shoor to state that the sentence of Wm. L. Springs will expire July 18, 1881. He was convicted on the charge of stealing an old silver watch valued at about eight dollars, belonging to a colored man. The testimony was principally circumstantial, and there is a strong conviction on the part of many respectable people that Sorings was not smile. pally circumstantial, and there is a strong conviction on the part of many respectable people that Springs was not guilty of the offense. There is a very decided opinion by many familiar with the prosecution that, whether guilty or not, the testimony upon which he was convicted was insdequate, and but for the bitter prejudice which provailed against him he would not have been found guilty. convicted was insidequate, and but for the bitter. Prejudice which prevailed against him he would not have been found guilty. There was not the least evidence of any facts aggravating the offence above that of mere larceny, and yet the extraordinary sentence of three years imprisonment in the penitentiary was imposed. But the mailgnant spirit with which Springs was prosecuted did not even end with his severe sentence, but pursued him into the penitentiary, where the authorities, upon the report that he was a bad man and would make a dargerous prisoner, condemned him to wear a ball and chain for the first seven months. I have been informed by those queauinted with the conduct of the prisoner, and in fact connected with the limitation, that during all the long time there was not a better behaved man among the convicts. His Excellency, Governor Simpson was present at Court is upon the testimony he was surprised at the conviction. This admission has been made by the Governor to U. S. Marshal R. M. Wallace, Revenue Agent W. H. Chaplan, Deputy Collector L. B. Hanford, all of whom walted upon him for the purpose of securing a pardon for Springs. In addition, the wife of Springs presented to Governor Simpson a petition asking for the pardon of her husband, numerously signed by many of the first citizens of Greenville, S. C., upon the condition that he would leave the State as soon as set free. The Governor encouraged the belief that the pardon would be issued, but that an opposition petition had been received.

doned. He encouraged me to think that he would take an interest in the matter. Knowing how potential his influence would be, I returned to my office, and immediately wrote him a letter setting forth the facts connected with the trial, sentence, imprisoment, and failure of the Governor to interpose to pardon a man whom he admitted was improperly convicted. I called attention to the exceeding clemency of the General Government in arresting over 300 revenue violators in his State, and to the fact that shortly before Spring's conviction his brother, Deputy Marshal Rufus L. Springs, had been foully assessinated while in the discharge of his duty, and is of are as known no efforts had been made to discover and bring to punishment the murderer. Also to the merciful treatmen awarded at the last August term to those citizens of Union county, S. C., who pleaded guilty to rescuing forcibly and at the Lead of a mob, a blocked tobacco team from the custody of the Revenue officials and releasing the prisoners, thereby entailing on the Government a large expense in employing additional officers. But my efforts were unavailing, like those which preceded. Springs is the only Revenue official since my term of service who has been convicted for an offense against the State. During this time service who has been convicted feuse against the State. During this time many hundreds of citizens have been con victed of offenses against the General Government, some of which were of an aggra vated nature, a large number of wh have been freely amnestied, while not one has suffered like the despised Springr. The comparison is both odious and humil-The comparison is both odious and numi-iating, and suggests the reflection that the "quality of mercy has been strained." I sincerely trust that you may succeed in awakening a sense of justice to the pris-oner and the Government. E. M. BRAYTON, Collector.

Hon, Green B. Raum, Con Hon. Green B. Raum, Commissioner, Wash-ington, D. C.
When Judge Mackey was in Washing-ton last winter, General Raum made an earnest personal appeal to him to interfere in this poor fellow's behalf, and he prom-ised to do so. The parcon thus grudgingly at this late hour accorded Springs is prob-ably the result of his efforts.
